

WEB SERIES & INDIE FILM COMPETITION

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

2013 NEX TV WEB SERIES QUARTER FINALISTS ANNOUNCED - DITMARS ANGELS AMONG FINALISTS

NEW YORK (November 29, 2013) NexTv is a new kind of company, born out of a new era in the entertainment industry. Utilizing resources from New Media and Established Hollywood, the following is our mission:

- *To find the best content (and talent) from around the web, then repackage it for mainstream television and feature films.
- *To connect cutting-edge writers, actors, filmmakers and all content-generators with the entertainment industry's most relevant decision-makers.
- *To leverage our massive online community of content-creators, as well as our relationships with high-level industry professionals, to address the great opportunities that 21st century technology has provided for the entertainment industry.

We have entered a new era in television and film. Hollywood's top decision-makers are scouring the web, looking for independent artists to generate tomorrow's great content, and NexTv is helping them find it. We have created this competition to bring Industry Leaders from around Hollywood the best in upcoming talent.

Finalists' work is chosen for originality, execution and most of all, the potential for being adapted as successful television content. Brain Fry Productions' edgy new urban comedic web series, the Ditmars Angels, chronicles the day to day of a trio of 30-something wannabe dancers, trying to make a name for themselves and their neighborhood, by flash mobbing all over Queens.

Written & created by comedian/actor trio Laura Bassi, Melanie DeBernardis, & Kristen Kress, the series is full of energy, over the top comedy & a smart, saavy, mockustyle everyone can appreciate.

The pilot episode was released last spring, and the creative team heading the series has two more episodes currently in post-production, soon to be added to the team's YouTube channel. Subscribe here:

Kress, also the series' Director/Producer had this to say on the recent accolades for the Angels, "We love the Angels! We are thrilled that other people like them too and are excited to see what we can do with the series. We would love to further develop it and are excited for the chance to get the series in front of such an esteemed panel of industry judges."
